TO THE READER.

THEY who are acquainted with the Character of the late Charles Bernard, Esq; Serjeant Surgeon to Her Majesty, will, without any Commendation, believe his Library to to be very choice and valuable. As he was a Man not only of extraordinary Skill and Judgment in his Profession, even beyond any one whom these last Ages have produced, but also wonderfully well versed in all the Parts of Polite Learning; it will easily be presum'd that his Collection of Books in all Kinds, was carefully and judiciously made. Nor will the Publick Expectation be disappointed in this Matter; For no Library, has, I dare say, been put to Sale these many Years better answering the Character of its Owner, than the present does. The Serjeant set out in the World with with a ſtrong Inclination to Learning, and as he began very early not only to Collect, but to Read Books, had very great Opportunities of furniſhing himſelf both with the beſt of all Sorts, and the faireſt Copies; and therefore few Libraries have appeared in ſo good Condition as this, the moſt valuable Authors eſpecially; for he always thought the beſt Books deſerved the beſt Covering. and conſidered, that many a good Book happening to fall into ignorant Hands, is thrown away and loſt by the Meanneſs of its Dreſs, which would have been preſerved, had its Ornament been ſuitable to its Worth.

Another Inſtance he has given us of his Care and Underſtanding in this Point, by writing now and then in the blanck Leaves of ſeveral Volumes particular Remarks upon the Author, or that Edition; which as few knew the Hiſtory of Learning ſo well as himſelf, do very often ſhew either the Value of a Book not commonly known, or ſome particular Paſſages in it the moſt worthy of Note.

To the READER.

In one Word, as these Books were the chief Delight of their Learned Master, who for Readiness of Wit, Correctness of Judgment, Happiness of Memory and Experience in his Profession, has left very few, if any, his Equals; so the Publick may be assured, for their Satisfaction, that they are exposed to Sale in the same Condition in which he left them: In which no one Book having, since his Decease, been taken from, or added to his Library.

Christopher Bateman.

Conditions of SALE.
